

Doing Shame without Shaming: Working With Affect in Sexual Harm and Trauma'

Facilitator: Alan Jenkins- psychologist and director of Nada and manager of the Mary St. program for young people engaging in sexually harmful behaviour.

Date: Thursday 28TH May, 2020

From: 10am – 4.00pm

*At: Queen Victoria Women's Centre
210 Lonsdale St*

Workshop Objectives

This workshop aims at developing approaches for working creatively and playfully with affective practices that evoke shame, disgust and transgressive pleasure together with behaviours that evoke danger, risk and excitement, in the context of sexually harmful behaviour.

Participants will learn to:

- establish a parallel and ethical affective journey in a context that can be highly shaming
- become attuned to the creative possibilities in troubling affects such as shame
- resist moral colonising to generate ethical forms of interest and excitement
- promote curiosity and support ethical experimentation

Morning tea will be provided, participants are asked to provide their own lunch.*
